

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention discloses a receiving apparatus for receiving image data. The configuration of the receiving apparatus is disclosed.

5 That is, the receiving apparatus includes a reception circuit for receiving first image data for displaying an image in a first display area in a maximum display area of a display apparatus, second image data for displaying an image in a second display area in the 10 display area, and information related to image displaying in the first display area, and a control circuit for generating a signal for requesting transmission of the first image data of an apparatus for controlling the transmission of the first image
15 data, on a basis of the information. The information is information specified by a transmitter of the second image data.